

If there is demand for a product, or a product is created that might generate demand, it should be allowed to succeed or fail on its own. Not by government dictate.